

Custom Production

At Robertson Harness, our design team loves to work with vendors on specialty products and custom design.

A custom piece can be as simple as alternative colors in web or the type of web used for the application.

-Although we use nylon webbing, there are distinctive factors for different applications which dictate the types of webbing we may use. Key aspects range from required strength to environmental conditions.

Often time's customization requires a complete design from the ground up. Custom products require extra time for design and development and when required testing.

We never shy away from full customization and encourage design input from the customer.

*Important

Custom items require a minimum of ten units be ordered.

All custom orders are final and are not eligible for returns. Robertson Harness products are fully warranted to the original owner against defects in materials and workmanship for the lifetime of the product, but does not include dissatisfaction due to custom designs.

Requests for changes or additional customization or alterations may not be an option once the product has been designed and assembled.
